INTERACTIVE TRAVEL SERVICES ASSOCIATION

Statement of
Arthur B. Sackler
Opposing House Bill 147
on behalf of the
Interactive Travel Services Association
to the
Montana House of Representatives
Taxation Committee
January 23, 2007

Mr. Chairman, members of the committee,

Thank you for the opportunity to appear before you today to address House Bill 147 and the important policy issues it raises. My name is Art Sackler, and I am the Executive Director of the Interactive Travel Services Association ("ITSA"). ITSA is the association for the online travel industry and global distribution systems. Our members include Expedia, Orbitz, Travelocity, Priceline.com, Hotels.com, Vegas.com and other well-known web sites. A full list of our members can be found on our website.

Mr. Chairman, ITSA's Online Travel Company (OTC) members, through their facilitation of travel reservations, are online engines of revenue growth that help power the success of Montana hotels, resorts and other travel and tourism businesses. In particular, OTC's have been able to facilitate substantial room bookings for Montana's lodging and other companies, both large and small. We believe that this results in significant additional revenues to the businesses that directly benefit from increased hotel traffic – such as restaurants, cinemas and ski or other sporting equipment stores. This is the so-called and well-known "multiplier effect." If I may, I'd like to show you a few samples of the ways our companies have facilitated and promoted travel by both business and leisure travelers to Montana by directing your attention to the hard copy we've distributed. What you're looking at are screenshots from the websites of several of our member companies. As you can see, Montana, and its exciting opportunities feature prominently.

Much of this Montana business is incremental – frequently filling hotel rooms that otherwise would remain vacant. We believe that the incremental increases in rooms reserved have in turn increased revenues to the state. What the OTC's do is a win for Montana travel businesses, a win for the state of Montana, and a win for consumers and business travelers. It's a win/win/win situation we strongly believe is worth preserving.

Here is how this innovative business model, the so-called "merchant model," works. OTC's do not own, rent or resell hotel rooms. What they do is enable a traveler to book his or her own hotel room online through the OTC's multifunctional, easy-to-use and state-of-the-art websites. Through those websites, consumers are able to comparison shop for reservations among a number of hotels in virtually any location and make those reservations wherever they choose. Hotels in Montana and elsewhere, especially small ones without broad name recognition, gain access to millions of potential consumers who might otherwise not know they exist. The OTC's are not paid commissions by the hotels under this model of distribution and the only income to the OTC's is in the form of service and facilitation fees charged to the consumer. This win/win/win scenario has worked so well for all concerned that it's been a major contributor to travel's becoming the leading e-commerce segment.

So, we regret that you've begun to consider going down a path that will, in our view, damage this engine of revenue growth by seeking to tax the fees charged by the OTC's. We firmly believe that the taxes proposed in HB 147 would have counterproductive effects not only on OTC's, but on the other links in our win/win/win chain.

Underscoring this, the American Hotel and Lodging Association, in a 2003 study, found that even a 2.0% increase in taxes on hotel rooms "will cause about a 2.4% reduction in room sales and associated visitor spending per year." Going farther back, in the '90s, New York added a 5% hotel occupancy tax to disastrous results – diminished conventions and travel, lost jobs and lower tax revenues, rather than an increase. The tax was subsequently repealed.

The bottom line is that imposing these taxes would transform the merchant model and our facilitation of Montana travel from a win/win/win to a lose/lose/lose proposition. OTC's would likely lose bookings and revenue; hotels would rent fewer rooms, with traffic to businesses dependent upon them diminishing; and local jurisdictions likely would realize less revenue rather than more.

Other states have examined legislatively applying taxes to the OTC's in recent years – Louisiana, Florida, Georgia and Massachusetts are examples – but none has yet decided to impose one. The negative impact on travel and tourism figured prominently in their consideration of these measures.

By enacting this bill, Montana would also be making some tax policy and travel and tourism policy choices that, in our view, are ill-advised. We believe that the measures in HB 147 would constitute new taxes on services, new taxes on the Internet, and new taxes on travel and tourism. This would make Montana a leader in expanding taxes on business. But again these new taxes wouldn't just impact national companies; they would most certainly affect smaller travel agencies which happen to have websites over which their clients can reserve hotel rooms. Please see the testimony filed by the American Society of Travel Agents.

We're also concerned about the effect of Montana's decision beyond your borders. The nation has some 7500 taxing jurisdictions. If Montana were to act, and others follow, the cumulative tax impact would badly damage a business model that, once again, has been an engine of increased bookings and revenues everywhere – in Montana and beyond. To boot, dealing with the many varying tax rates and other remittance requirements of thousands of jurisdictions is in itself a huge burden, and one that will increase the price of travel and tourism.

Finally, but importantly, HB 147 appears to be problematic in light of the commerce clause of the U.S. Constitution. Under the line of cases culminating in Quill v. North Dakota, the Supreme Court has ruled that a state may not tax an entity that does not have a physical presence in its jurisdiction. A typical transaction involving an OTC would find a traveler in, say, Kentucky booking a hotel in Montana through an OTC based in Seattle – which has no physical contacts in Montana.

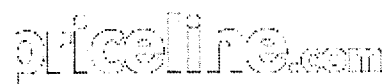

So, we ask you not to lead the way in risking damage to this manifestly popular and successful business model, and the benefits it has provided to Montana travel by imposing these taxes and raising the price that consumers will pay for hotel rooms in Montana. The results, in our view, will be unhappy for all: HB 14, we believe, will depress revenues, negatively impact travel and tourism, may well not be constitutional and should be reconsidered. We respectfully urge you not to undertake the transformation from win/win/win to lose/lose/lose.

Thank you and I'd be happy to answer any questions you may have.

Art Sackler
Executive Director, ITSA

Minutes from some of Montana's best whitewater rafting and fishing, and conveniently located just off of I-90 in a quaint little mountain town, the Montana Hotel is a genuine slice of old Montana. Built in 1909 as a railroad hotel, it graciously stands today - a modern, comfortable country inn, handy to many outdoor recreation opportunities. ...
